Real Estate School Slashes Tuition for Displaced Workers

School Offers New Career Path

HONOLULU, HI – www.abeleerealty.com – In the aftermath of massive island layoffs, Abe Lee Seminars is cutting the cost for displaced employees to enroll in real estate school. Tuition for recently displaced employees will drop from $450 to $250 for classroom instruction and from $425 to $225 for independent study/online courses. Classes begin May 13, and the schedule can be found at www.abeleeseminars.com.

"Right now there are a lot of people out there who need to quickly get back on their feet, find other careers and tap into new sources of income," said Abe Lee of Abe Lee Seminars. "Getting licensed in real estate can do just that." In addition to course instruction and exam preparation, Lee will further assist students in placement, finding the best real estate company to match their personality and needs. "Most positions in real estate are compensated solely on commission, but there are some salaried opportunities as well," he said, noting that school and state exams must be passed before students can get licensed.
